

This from the New York Post's Page Six
FRUMPY billionaire Warren Buffett is being urged by friends to let the boys from "Queer Eye for the Straight Guy" give him a much-needed makeover. Buffett confirmed to us that a female friend had suggested him as a candidate to a Bravo bigwig. Buffett is infamous for wearing worn-down clothes, the same tie many days in a row, and lunching every day at the same greasy spoon in his hometown of Omaha, Neb. As for actually consenting to appear on the swishy show, Buffett says he's never seen it, and that he only watches news, sports and "The Sopranos."

And this from the New York State legislature...

"Marriage For None: Deborah Glick proposal would establish civil unions as only option for gays, straights"
