

Just watched "The Shape of Things" with Paul Rudd. Rented this flick based largely on Rudd's involvement. Pawn had the good fortune of catching Rudd in "Long Day's Journey into Night" with Jessica Lange in London some many years back, and expected to see, if nothing else, some good acting. Alas, not here. This movie is a sophomoric effort, about a sophomoric effort, and has nothing to recommend it in the least. Too bad, Mr. Rudd. I guess you really were leaning on Ms. Lange that much.
