

Pawn's old buddy Dave has some interesting comments to make about Congressman William Jefferson's indictment over at the 100 Word Rant:
They found 90 thousand bucks in Bill Jefferson's freezer. That's slightly less than Bob Byrd's maid normally finds between the sofa cushions. A 90 grand tip would be an insult to Dubya after giving some Halliburton exec's wingtips one of his forked-tongue shoeshines. All Congressmen are traditionally assumed to be utterly corruptible, so why go after the gentleman from Louisiana? Let's just say the reason starts with "n" and rhymes with "œwe grow." While I have yet to peruse the entire 16-count indictment against "œDollar Bill" Jefferson, I'm pretty sure I'll find the word uppity in there somewhere.
100 word rant: these things snowball
You tell 'em, Dave!