

Reuters is carrying a story about a dust-up at the EU, in Brussels, over a risqué “44-second clip of 18 couples achieving ecstasy in a variety of positions and venues”.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dKFTfAWnYh8>

I guess that is to be expected. Here’s our favorite line from the article:

Some reporters also took a swipe at the title of the sequence, asking whether “Let’s Come Together” was acceptable innuendo — and if it was, whether the pun worked in the 27-member Union’s other official languages...

“Let us for once also have a good sense of humor and let us not start the old wars of the fifties about what is sex, what is pornography and what is simply normal to watch on television,” spokesman Martin Selmayr appealed Wednesday.

Orgasm clip spices up EU meeting - CNN.com