Got a note from my buddy John S., today. He seems a little shocked over a recent local headline:
I think we could more or less steal Vermont's motto - did you hear that the three geniuses who became infatuated with the picture of a woman in her obituary notice and decided they would dig her(it) up and have sex with her(it) -got arrested and got off on appeal. Hard not to appreciate a good attorney - seems Wisconsin doesn't actually have any laws forbidding necrophilia? We need to be very happy that the writers strike is on - Leno and co would have had a field day with this one.
