

I have decided that I have earned some quiet time. I have spent so much time out and about, and my feet have had a workout. I am going to stay in most of the day.

I did pop out for breakfast over the Daily Telegraph this AM over at La Fromagerie. Nice latté and croissant, followed by an assortment of cheeses selected for breakfast. It was pricey, but well worth it.

It has gotten up to 12° today, which is about as warm as it will get. I will probably go out onto the patio to do some writing.

Ta!
