

The New York Times is reporting:

The Oklahoma Legislature voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to override vetoes of two highly restrictive abortion measures, one making it a law that women undergo an ultrasound and listen to a detailed description of the fetus before having an abortion.

Strict Abortion Measures Enacted in Oklahoma | New York Times

In the interest of fairness, Pawn feels we should have similar requirements for prescribing certain erectile dysfunction treatments.Â Perhaps mandate that all men be required to listen to tapes of crying babies and change a few diapers before getting those little blue pills...